

Is your company prepared for the impact caregiving has on your bottom line?

As America continues to battle COVID-19, challenges surrounding the nation's serious family caregiver crisis have intensified.

Recent studies have revealed some very eye-opening statistics:

- 40% of employers are struggling to sustain their productivity because of employees' increased caregiving responsibilities ¹
- 53% report late arrival, leaving early or taking time off to accommodate child or adult care needs. This includes work from home employees ¹
- One in four employers are facing significant workforce challenges, as talent continues to exit due to increased caregiving responsibilities ²

Now more than ever, your employees need help finding the right care for their loved ones.
